Chapter 3 Entity Relationships - Merrick Biotech Ex 6

Read the following case study and attempt to draw the entity model that matches it. Study the information carefully and see if you can identify the entities - remember that entities are things about which data will be stored. Make your own list of those things that you think are likely to be entities, before looking at the answers and seeing if you were correct. Then see if you can identify some attributes of each entity.

The Merrick Biotech Practice has doctors, nurses, midwives and patients. The patient has to telephone for appointments with the doctors or nurses and these appointments are allocated by the receptionist. An appointment can only be made with one doctor, midwife or nurse at a time. A patient may also only be registered with one doctor.
